

CABE's 2024-2025

Educational Affiliate Membership Program

The Connecticut Association of Boards of Education's (CABE) Educational Affiliate Membership program was created in 1996 by the CABE Board of Directors to help meet the needs of education-related institutions that have an interest in public education. CABE invites educational service centers, community colleges, higher education institutions and others interested in public education to take part in this exciting program.

The information you receive as an Educational Affiliate will keep you informed on the issues of concern to Connecticut public schools. You will obtain insight into the latest developments in local public education and gain opportunities to network with school district leaders.

What is CABE?

CABE is the statewide association of local and regional boards of education in Connecticut, dedicated to serving the needs of local and regional school districts. CABE's membership consists of 158 school districts representing 90 percent of the state's student population.

CABE provides a wide variety of information, management and advocacy services to its member boards of education to assist education officials in meeting their responsibilities.
