Freedom of Information Commission

November 12, 2021

- Connecticut's Freedom of Information Act ("FOIA") was enacted in 1975.
- Connecticut's Freedom of Information Commission ("FOIC") is primarily responsible for enforcement of our FOIA.
- The FOIA essentially has two requirements: 1) meetings of public agencies must be held in open, and 2) records of public agencies are subject to disclosure and inspection by the public at large.
- The FOIA also sets forth numerous exceptions to its open meetings and records requirements.

What Is A Public Agency?

- A “public agency” is not only the agency itself, but also includes any committee (or “subcommittee”) of or created by the agency. Connecticut General Statutes §1-200(1).
- Thus, board subcommittees generally must comply with all of the same FOIA requirements as the board itself.
- Covers most quasi-public agencies and the “functional equivalent” of public agencies (i.e., entities publicly funded/created, highly regulated, and/or performing a governmental function).
- Charter schools are covered by FOIA. Charter management organizations (“CMOs”) are not covered by FOIA, but any charter school contract with a CMO must provide that all CMO records related to the administration of said school are subject to disclosure.

- A public record includes “any recorded data or information relating to the conduct of the public’s business prepared, owned, used, received or retained by a public agency, ... , whether such data or information be handwritten, typed, tape-recorded, videotaped, printed, photostated, photographed or recorded by any other method.” Connecticut General Statutes §1-200(5).

PLEASE NOTE: “Public records” may possibly even be created when public employees use public equipment for personal purposes.

What Is A “Meeting”?

- “Any hearing or other proceeding of a public agency, any convening or assembly of a quorum of a multimember public agency, and any communication by or to a quorum of a multimember public agency, whether in person or by means of electronic equipment, to discuss or act upon a matter over which the public agency has supervision, control, jurisdiction or advisory power.” Connecticut General Statutes §1-200(2).
- “Quorum” is generally required for a “meeting” to be covered by FOIA, except for a “hearing” or other “proceeding”. Meriden v. FOIC, 338 Conn. 310 (2021).
- “Meetings” can include “workshops” and “informational sessions.” Don’t be cute with labels to try to avoid the FOIA.

“Electronics”: Allowing Absent Board Members to Participate (pre-pandemic)

- Telephonic participation by agency members that allows the public to monitor the conduct of the meeting and the individual participation in the meeting by agency members (e.g., Skype, speakerphone) does not violate the FOIA.
- Optimal if board’s bylaws address circumstances and procedures for telephonic participation in meetings by board members (especially in light of Robert’s Rules of Order).
- But, special rules during the COVID-19 pandemic and “State of Emergency”, which leads to

- The “budget implementer” bill passed in June amended the FOIA, preserving, at least temporarily, elements of pandemic-era Executive Orders concerning “remote” and “hybrid” meetings.
- Until April 30, 2022, a public agency (such as a board or any of its committees) can hold meetings that are accessible to the public through 1) electronic equipment only (i.e., “remote meetings”) or 2) remote participation in conjunction with an in-person meeting (i.e., “hybrid meetings”).
- For these meetings, boards must use technology that “facilitates real-time public access to meetings,” such as “telephonic, video or other conferencing platforms.”

- If a board intends to conduct a remote or hybrid regular meeting, it must provide at least 48 hours 1) advance written or electronic notification to each board member and 2) notice to the public, posted in its office and on its website.
- Boards still must post agendas for these regular meetings at least 24 hours in advance; the notice/agenda must include instructions for the public to access the meeting.
- A notice of a special meeting must be posted 24 hours in advance and indicate whether it will be conducted solely or in part via electronic equipment (with instructions for accessing the meeting).
- PLEASE NOTE: Notices of adjournment must also be posted on the agency's website.

Public Access For Remote Regular Meetings

If a board conducts a meeting (other than an executive session or special meeting) solely by means of electronic equipment, it must

- 1) provide any member of the public (upon a written request at least 24 hours in advance of the meeting) with a physical location and electronic equipment necessary to attend the meeting in real-time,
- 2) record or transcribe the meeting (excluding portions held in executive session), with any transcription/recording to be posted on its website and made available to the public in the board's office no later than seven days after the meeting and for at least 45 days thereafter; and
- 3) if a quorum of board members attend a meeting via electronic equipment from the same physical location, permit the public to attend the meeting in that location.

NOTE: Boards are not required to provide such access/equipment for in-person or hybrid meetings, since the public can access such meetings by merely showing up.

- Members of the public attending remotely must be provided with the same opportunity to provide comment and participate in the meeting that they would be accorded if it was in-person.
- Boards are NOT required to offer persons attending a meeting remotely the opportunity for comment if they are not required by law for persons attending in-person.

- Board members must be provided with the opportunity to participate in meetings remotely.
- Boards are not required to adjourn or postpone a meeting if a member loses the ability to participate because of issues with that member's electronic connection, unless the member's participation is necessary for a quorum.
- Unless unanimous, votes taken at a meeting at which any member participates remotely shall be taken by rollcall.
- Meeting minutes must identify which members attended in-person or remotely.

- IDENTIFY YOURSELF: Any board member or member of the public participating in a meeting conducted via electronic equipment shall make a good faith effort to state one's name and title (if applicable) at the outset of each occasion that the person participates orally during an uninterrupted dialogue or series of questions and answers.
- MAINTAINING ORDER: Those attending remotely/electronically who are disrupting a meeting so as to render the orderly conduct of the meeting unfeasible may have their attendance terminated until such times as such persons conform to order (or until the meeting is closed, if necessary). There is a similar provision for town meetings.

- A board is not required to adjourn/postpone a meeting if a member of the public loses the ability to participate because of issues with their connection.
- If a meeting conducted via electronic equipment is interrupted by disconnection or an unacceptable degradation of the electronic equipment, or if a board member necessary to form a quorum loses the ability to participate because of such issues with the member's connection, the board may (at least 30 minutes -but not more than two hours- after the interruption) resume the meeting 1) in-person, if a quorum is present in-person, or 2) if a quorum is restored via electronic equipment, solely or in part by such equipment.
- The board shall (if practicable) post a notification on its website and inform attendees by electronic transmission of the expected time of resumption, or the adjournment or postponement of the meeting, and may announce at the beginning of meetings what preplanned procedures exist in the event of an interruption.

What Happens After April 30, 2022?

- The Connecticut Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations (in consultation with the FOIC and the Connecticut Association of Municipal Attorneys) will study the implementation of these temporary remote provisions, along with the feasibility of remote participation and voting during meetings, including remote voting using conference calls, videoconference or other technology.
- This Commission is required to issue a report to the General Assembly by February 1, 2022, with 1) findings and recommendations concerning best practices for the implementation of these provisions, 2) an analysis of the feasibility of remote participation and voting during meetings, and 3) the identification of funding sources for the implementation of remote participation and voting during meetings.
- Stay tuned for further developments.

- While the new law continues much of what was in prior Executive Orders, there are important distinctions, such as having to provide (upon request) a physical location with electronic equipment necessary to attend a remote regular meeting.
- The new law continues to provide board members with a right to attend meetings remotely (even meetings held in-person).
- A board can still choose to conduct traditional in-person meetings (and avoid some of these new issues).
- The new law does not provide boards with the ability to limit attendance at in-person or hybrid meetings, so a board holding a meeting that is at least partially in-person should plan on using facilities that would accommodate its meetings in normal times (unless capacity limits are reinstated via a worsening of the pandemic).

- A series of telephone calls or “telephone polling” (or e-mails and “e-mail polling”) by and between a quorum of board members concerning board business may be deemed to be a “meeting.”
- What about an e-mail sent to the entire board? WATCH OUT. Mauer v. Member, Board of Education, Regional School District 1, #FIC 2013-367 (April 23, 2014).
- Best practices: 1) do not send an e-mail to the entire membership (or quorum) of the board discussing board business; and 2) if you receive such an e-mail, do not reply (and be very afraid of hitting the “reply all” button).

- They are “meetings” and thus must be posted.
- Can you have them in executive session?
RISKY. See Fetchick v. Board of Education, Newtown Public Schools, #FIC 2010-245 (February 23, 2011).
- A general discussion of board member roles and responsibilities should be in public.

When Is A Meeting A “Non-meeting”?

Exceptions to “meeting” definition include:

- Personnel search committee for executive level candidates;
- Chance or social meeting neither planned nor intended for the purpose of discussing board business;
- Discussions of strategy or negotiations for collective bargaining;
- Caucus of board members of a single political party;
- Administrative or staff meeting of a single-member public agency;
- Communication limited to notice of board meeting or its agenda;
- Quorum of the board who are present at any event which has been noticed and conducted as a meeting of another agency.

- Employee grievance hearing? Usually, absent some other exception, evidentiary portion is in public but deliberation can be in private (“non-meeting” or executive session)
- “Interest arbitration”? Teacher interest arbitrations are not covered by FOIA at all. Gould v. FOIC, 314 Conn. 802 (2014). In addition, non-certified and municipal employee interest arbitrations under MERA are exempt from the FOIA.

- 24 hours' notice and posting of agenda
- Agenda items-sufficient specificity (do not simply say “personnel matter” or “litigation”)
- Adding items to agendas at regular (but not special) meetings via a 2/3 vote of agency members who are present and voting
- Votes by members must be in public
- Minutes/record of votes
- Website posting? Usually (pre-pandemic) just required for special meetings notices
- Recording by public and media
- Order: keeping control v. over-reaching. ...

- If a meeting is interrupted by any person so as to render the orderly conduct of the meeting unfeasible, and if order cannot be restored by the removal of persons willfully interrupting the meeting, the agency may order the meeting room cleared and continue with its meeting. CGS §1-232.
- Only matters on the agenda may be considered in such a meeting.
- “Duly accredited” representatives of the press/news media, except those participating in the disturbance, must be allowed to attend.
- PRACTICAL POINTERS: Before an agency seeks to remove a possibly “unruly” person from a meeting, it must first ask the person to refrain from speaking and/or to sit down.
- Clearing the room is a measure of last resort, and only can be done if one can prove that order could not have been restored merely by the removal of the individual(s) who were interrupting the meeting.

- A public agency must permit any member of the public to attend meetings without being required to register by name, furnish information of any kind, complete a questionnaire, or fulfill any other condition before entering the meeting place. Connecticut General Statutes §1-225(e).
- While an agency may have a sign-in sheet for persons attending or speaking at a meeting, the agency cannot then prevent members of the public who refuse to provide their names from attending the meeting.
- While the FOIA gives the public the right to be present at meetings, nothing in the FOIA confers upon the public the right to speak at a meeting. Mosby v. Chairman, Norwalk Board of Education, #FIC 2013-384 (April 9, 2014).
- An agency's determination as to whether to even permit public comments at its meetings is governed by other policy considerations (and under certain circumstances, legal/constitutional mandates concerning viewpoint neutrality) but is not a matter that concerns the FOIC.

- You need a 2/3 vote to go into executive session.
- You need a valid reason (as set forth in the FOIA).
- You need to provide some specificity as to the purpose of the executive session (do not simply say “personnel matter” or even “attorney client privileged communication”).
- Query: Who can attend besides the board members?

“Popular” Reasons For Executive Session: “Personnel Matter”

- Discussion concerning the appointment, employment, performance, evaluation, health or dismissal of a public officer or employee, provided that such individual may require that the discussion be held at an open meeting.*
- This exception only applies to a discussion regarding a specific employee, not general classes or categories of employees.
- This exception would include discussions by a board on filling a vacancy in its membership (including candidate interviews).
- This exception usually does not provide a basis to have the evidentiary portion of an employee grievance or administrative hearing (as opposed to the deliberation phase) in executive session. Deliberation=discussion; evidence does not.

- Strategy and negotiations with respect to pending claims or pending litigation involving board (or board member)- until such litigation or claim has been finally adjudicated or otherwise settled.
 - Would include discussion of whether to initiate litigation or other legal action.
- Matters concerning security strategy or the deployment of security personnel, or devices affecting public security.
 - Examples: Discussion of the layout of the security system, the best types of security devices to use to secure a building and where these devices should be located.

- Discussion of the selection of a site or the lease, sale, or purchase of real estate by the state (or political subdivision) when publicity regarding such site, lease, sale, purchase or construction would adversely impact its price until such time as all of the property has been acquired, or all proceedings or transactions concerning the property have been terminated or abandoned.
- Discussion of any matter that would result in the disclosure of confidential records or information excluded from the FOIA's disclosure requirements under Connecticut General Statutes §1-210(b), which leads to exempt records such as

- Need not disclose “personnel or medical files and similar files the disclosure of which would constitute an invasion of personal privacy.” Connecticut General Statutes §1-210(b)(2).
- This exception precludes disclosure of such files only when the information sought “does not pertain to legitimate matters of public concern and is highly offensive to a reasonable person.” Perkins v. FOIC, 228 Conn. 158 (1993). This is a tough burden.

- Records of alleged misconduct by an employee are usually subject to disclosure, as “the public has a right to know not only who their public employees are, but also when their public employees are and are not performing their duties.” Perkins v. FOIC, supra.
- Most employee evaluations are public records subject to disclosure. Teacher (and school administrator) evaluations are a notable exception, but written superintendent evaluations must be disclosed.

- Applies to educational records which are protected from disclosure under the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act. See Connecticut General Statutes §1-210(b)(17).
- This exception applies not only to student records but also to “personally identifiable information” concerning the student.
- Can board still be required to produce student record and simply redact student names? It depends. See Smith v. Superintendent, Middletown Public Schools, #FIC 2013-333 (January 30, 2014).
- Access to videotapes with student images? Ezzo v. Superintendent of Schools, Berlin Public Schools, #FIC 2017-0663 (March 14, 2018).

- Trade secrets (Connecticut General Statutes §1-210(b)(5)). Need not disclose “trade secrets,” defined as “information, including formulas, patterns, compilations, programs, devices, methods, techniques, processes, drawings, cost data, or customer lists, film or television scripts or detailed production budgets that:
 - (a) derive independent economic value, actual or potential, from not being generally known to, and not being readily ascertainable by proper means by, other persons who can obtain economic value from its disclosure or use, and
 - (b) are the subject of efforts that are reasonable under the circumstances to maintain secrecy” and “commercial or financial information given in confidence, not required by statute.”

- Portions of a RFP response (even after there is a final contract) could be exempt from disclosure where the information is not generally known to competitors (e.g., size and scope of proposed facilities and amenities to be provided at a gaming facility, database fields). Rubin v. Executive Director, Connecticut Airport Authority, #FIC 2016-0035 (August 24, 2016); Database USA LLC v. Commissioner, Connecticut Department of Administrative Services, #FIC 2015-209 (February 10, 2016).
- This exception has been repeatedly found to cover the formula and calculations used by a company hired to calculate property assessments for a municipality. Vartulli v. Chairman, Board of Assessment, City of Stamford, #FIC 2013-029 (October 23, 2013).

- Protects communications between a public official and attorney that are confidential, made in the course of the professional relationship, and relate to legal advice sought by the agency. Connecticut General Statutes §52-146r.
- If a written communication offers such confidential legal advice, and if the agency maintains the confidentiality of the advice and written legal opinion, then the record is exempt from disclosure. Dostaler v. Town of East Hampton, #FIC 2008-041 (July 9, 2008).
- Key for an executive session: Must have written communication.

- Pending claims (Connecticut General Statutes §1-210(b)(4)). Need not disclose “records pertaining to strategy and negotiations with respect to pending claims or pending litigation to which the public agency is a party until such litigation or claim has been finally adjudicated or otherwise settled.”
- Preliminary drafts and notes (Connecticut General Statutes §1-210(b)(1)). Need not disclose “preliminary drafts or notes provided the public agency has determined that the public interest in withholding such documents clearly outweighs the public interest in disclosure.” (Example: personal notes, prior drafts of contracts or reports)

- Real estate appraisals (Connecticut General Statutes §1-210(b)(7)). Need not disclose “contents of real estate appraisals, engineering or feasibility estimates and evaluations made for or by an agency relative to the acquisition of property or to prospective public supply and construction contracts, until such time as all of the property has been acquired or all proceedings or transactions have been terminated or abandoned, provided the law of eminent domain shall not be affected by this provision.”
- Safety risk (Connecticut General Statutes §1-210(b)(19)). Exempts from disclosure documents where there are reasonable grounds to believe that disclosure may result in a safety risk.
- Of course, records exempt due to other state or federal laws.

- Public has the right to 1) inspect records during regular business hours, and 2) receive copies of records, subject to FOIA fees and payment procedures. Connecticut General Statutes §1-210(a).
- The FOIA does not require agencies to 1) respond to written questions or inquiries or 2) create documents. Howard v. Regional School District No. 14, #FIC 2011-075 (August 24, 2011).
- IMPORTANT: agencies may require that requests for copies be in writing, but not requests to inspect records.

- The type of copy to be provided is within the discretion of the public agency, except the agency (1) must provide a certified copy if requested, and (2) cannot not provide an electronic or fax copy of the record if the applicant does not have access to a computer or fax machine.

Connecticut General Statutes §1-212(a).

- Separate FOIA provision for “computer stored” records: agency must provide a copy of any such nonexempt data “on paper, disk, tape or any other electronic storage device or medium requested by the person, if the agency can reasonably make such copy or have such copy made.”

Fees For Copies?

- An agency may charge fees for copies of records (electronic or otherwise). Cannot charge for search or retrieval of records.
- For most municipal public agencies, fees for “paper” copies may not exceed $0.50 per page. If providing a copy requires transcription, the fee may not exceed the cost of transcription. Connecticut General Statutes §1-212(a)(B). (HB 5011 would have reduced to $0.15)
- FOIA has exceptions to fee requirement.
- Use of “hand held scanners” by requester. Connecticut General Statutes §1-212(g). May charge fee up to $20.
- Use of cellphones to get free copies? Agency has some discretion (including saying “no”). See Paulsen v. Superintendent of Schools, Bethel Public Schools, #FIC 2015-663 (June 8, 2016).

- NO!!!! Regardless of the fees that may be properly charged for copies of records, there is no right to charge for a request to inspect records. Smith v. Human Resources, Connecticut Lottery Corporation, #FIC 2007-228 (February 13, 2008).
- If the requester then wishes to receive a copy of the record, the agency can then charge the appropriate copying fee.

- Persons have a right to inspect records “promptly”; Connecticut General Statutes §1-210(a); and a right to receive “promptly” copies of such records. Connecticut General Statutes §1-212(a).
- A denial of a request must be made in writing within four (or ten)* business days of the request; failure to comply within this time period is deemed a denial. Connecticut General Statutes §1-206(a).
- This deadline does not actually require an agency to produce copies of all of the documents within this time period.
- As such, within four business days of the request, at least tell the requesting party the general status of compliance with the request and, more specifically, whether you are going to deny or withhold certain (or all of the) documents that have been requested.

- Common myth: employee or union has automatic right to object to disclosure of any personnel records. NO! The agency must first reasonably believe that the disclosure of such records would legally constitute an invasion of privacy before giving employee or union right to object to disclosure. (If so, ten days for compliance).*
- Since the FOIC has the power to issue fines, an agency should not give employees the blanket right to object to the disclosure of all records.
- Public Act 18-93 amended the FOIA so as to require a public agency disclosing such records (after disclosure) to then make a “reasonable attempt” to notify the employee and union representative, if any, of a request for (and release of) records.

Complying with Requests to Inspect Records

- Public records must be accessible and available to a person requesting access “promptly” during regular business hours.
- A public agency has the right to take steps to protect records from “destruction or mutilation.” Such steps include having personnel present to supervise the inspection of documents.
- While the FOIA does not explicitly empower an agency to require that a person make an appointment to inspect public records, the FOIC also opined that conflicts over requests for immediate access could be resolved by “reason and courtesy.”

- The fact that a request seeks numerous documents or that the records may be located in many files does not in itself provide a defense to complying with the request, especially where the citizen has specifically identified the records sought. Wildin v. FOIC, 56 Conn. App. 683, 686-7 (1999).
- The FOIA requires a public agency to comply with even a broad request for specific records even if the search is time consuming or burdensome. See Rubinowitz v. Greenwich Emergency Medical Service, #FIC 1987-188.

- While FOIA compliance is not your only job duty, it is an important job duty.
- While the burdensome nature of a request may excuse you from immediate compliance, you are still obligated to diligently search for the requested records, even if such search is time-consuming. Maurer v. Office of Corp. Counsel, City of Danbury, #FIC 2011-370 (June 13, 2012) affirmed, 2013 WL 5289790 (Conn. Super. 2013) (disclosure required even where city would have to manually pull every personnel and medical file of all of its employees).

- Any electronic messages sent or received by a public agency (whether by agency members or employees) relating to the conduct of the agency's business are subject to disclosure. Board members and employees should proceed accordingly.
- Use of a personal e-mail account to send/receive e-mails concerning public business does not shield e-mail from disclosure under the FOIA.
- Instant messaging or text messages may be public records. Smith v. Town of Putnam, #FIC 2012-564 (August 14, 2013).
- "Personal" messages? If occasional, may be exempt from disclosure. (But be careful.)

- Several statutes limit if not prohibit the destruction of public records.
- Length of time that public records should be retained? See Connecticut State Library/Public Records Administrator retention guidelines. (<http://www.cslib.org/publicrecords>).
- Records are not subject to destruction unless and until permitted by these retention guidelines.

- See Advisory Opinion of Public Records Administrator on Management of E-mail and other Electronic Messages (<http://www.cslib.org/publicrecords/GL2009-2Email.pdf>).
- Electronic messages must be retained according to the equivalent records series from the state records retention schedule.
- The same rule applies to attachments to e-mail.

Who Is Responsible For Saving E-mails?

- Usually, sender of the e-mail is responsible for retaining the e-mail.
- Recipient is responsible for maintaining e-mail where the sender is from outside the agency (e.g., a member of the public).
- Recipient is responsible for maintaining the message if he/she has altered the message (or added/revised any attachments).
- When there is a thread of e-mails, the Public Records Administrator's guidance indicates you need only retain the last message, as long as it includes all prior messages.
- It is a good idea for an agency to have a policy on retention.

- The FOIA does not “require any public agency to transcribe the content of any voice mail message and retain such record for any period of time.”
Connecticut General Statutes §1-213(b)(3).
- Of course, if litigation is threatened, there may be a need (if not a desire) to preserve such recordings, which leads to ...

- A record should not be destroyed if any litigation, claim, audit, FOIA request, legal process, subpoena, or other legal action involving the record is initiated before the record has been disposed of (even if its retention period has expired and approval for its destruction has been granted). The record must be retained until the completion of (and the resolution of all issues that arise from) the legal action.
- To be blunt, if you are ever in this situation, you should immediately contact legal counsel.

- A person alleging a denial of FOIA rights may file a complaint with the FOIC . See Connecticut General Statutes §1-206(b)(1).
- In rare circumstance, an agency can petition the FOIC to avoid a hearing. See Connecticut General Statutes §1-206(b)(2) and (4).
- If it finds that a public agency violated FOIA, the FOIC may:
 - (1) order the agency to produce or copy any public records that were improperly withheld.
 - (2) impose a fine of not less than $20 and not more than $1,000 against the agency’s record custodian or official if the agency acted “without reasonable grounds.”
 - (3) declare agency action to be “null and void.”
 - (4) order the agency to provide relief that the FOIC “believes appropriate to remedy the denial of any right conferred by the FOIA.”

What If Someone Is Making “Vexatious Requests”? A New Tool

- In light of Public Act 18-95, public agencies may petition the FOIC for relief from “vexatious requesters.” (Still a rare remedy.)
- The petition must detail a vexatious history of requests, such as: 1) the number of requests filed and total number of pending requests; 2) the scope of the requests; 3) the nature, content, language or subject matter of the requests; 4) the nature, content, language or subject matter of other oral/written communications to the agency from the requester; and 5) a pattern of conduct that amounts to an abuse of the right to access information under the FOIA or an interference with the operation of the agency.
- If the FOIC hears and then votes to grant the agency’s petition, the relief may include an order that the agency need not comply with future requests from the requester for a period of up to one year.

- Connecticut General Statutes §53-153:

Any person who, “willfully and corruptly,” takes away, alters, mutilates or destroys any document or property in the possession of “any institution, board, commission, department or officer of the state or any county or municipality or court, . . . shall be imprisoned not more than ten years.

- The FOIA itself has its own (albeit less serious) penalties.

Any person who willfully, knowingly and with intent to do so, destroys, mutilates or otherwise disposes of any public record without the approval required under the law or who alters any public record, shall be guilty of a class A misdemeanor and each such occurrence shall constitute a separate offense.

NOTE: It is also a class B misdemeanor for a member of a public agency to fail to comply with an order of the FOIC. There are no known FOIC prisons.
